Subject: ****Operational Flow Order ******

Effective 9:00 AM Central Time December 22, 2022

Enterprise Texas Pipeline LLC (“Transporter”) is issuing this Operational Flow Order (“OFO”) on its pipeline systems effective at 9:00AM Central time on Thursday, December 22, 2022. Due to the severe weather event forecasted to impact our entire geographic region, it has become imperative that our system remain in balance so that we can meet the needs of our customers. As a result, Transporter hereby mandates that throughout each Gas Day covered by this OFO all Shippers match deliveries from Transporter’s system with nominated volumes into Transporter’s system. This action is required regardless of Shipper-accumulated imbalance positions, and this OFO will remain in effect until further notice. Pursuant to Article XVI of Transporter’s Statement of Operating Conditions, Transporter hereby invokes its right to cash out shipper imbalances created during this OFO that result from shipper under-deliveries of Gas.

If a Shipper fails to comply with the terms of this OFO, such Shipper will be subject to (1) liability for any damages, including but not limited to direct, consequential, exemplary, or punitive damages incurred by Transporter or any other party as a result of such failure, (2) a reduction in scheduled re-deliveries to match flowing Gas; and/or (3) a charge equal to the maximum daily price of Gas in the state in which Transporter’s system is located as published in Gas Daily, or if Gas Daily is unavailable, another similar publication, plus $1.00 per MMBtu of the daily imbalance created as a result of Shipper’s failure to comply with this OFO.

Please contact your Commercial Representative or Scheduler should you have any questions.
